

Is it possible to take pictures remotely and e-mail photos through the network?

Yes. Most digital cameras save the images as JPEG, and you may save each image individually or to an album on the computer's hard drive. Images may also be scanned into the system in JPEG format by a scanner such as the HP scanner.

Then simply use e-mail to send the photos. Full photo cropping capabilities are present at the time of import within the IVIS Plus 1000 or 2000 software packages.