

If I have used or learned one of the products, how difficult is it to move to the next level?

All VSC2 products are part of the same family. Therefore, procedures and screens are as similar as possible from one to the other. If you have learned how to work with the main modules on one of the levels, the rest of the products will look familiar. Transition from one product to the next is straightforward.